Wild Leadership: How To Help Your Teams Pull To Their Potential

Join speaker, poet and wilderness guide Chris Heeter for an adventure in the art of leadership and helping teams gel. Featured on the Discovery Channel's "National Geographic Today," Chris brings a wealth of knowledge learned on the trail and from her sled dogs. With the help of her dog team (virtually—they don't understand carpeting, buffets, or furniture), she'll walk you through the world of dogsledding—a sport where communication and teamwork are essential to getting where you want to go. With surprising and memorable parallels to the world of health care, managing change, and letting go of 'how we've always done it,' you'll leave with immediate tools and long-term vision for becoming a Wild leader and bringing out the best in your teams.

Chris Heeter

Chris Heeter was selected as a Top Ten Speaker of 2014 by MeetingsNet, and was the highest rated speaker of Meeting Professional International's 2014 World Education Congress. She is out to create a Wild revolution in the workplace. A wilderness guide since 1984 and professional speaker since 2001, Chris has led and worked with a diverse array of teams, both canine and human!

Featured on The Discovery Channel's "National Geographic Today," she brings decades of leadership experience indoors, to conferences and offices, working with teams and leaders, helping us recognize that leadership and teamwork doesn't have to be so complicated.

With remarkable parallels to the work world, Chris shares hilarious stories from her sled dog team with their quirky personalities and from guiding whitewater trips, where successfully navigating obstacles (mostly) is part of the journey.

She sits on the board of the University of Minnesota's Raptor Center, is a Wilderness First Responder and a graduate of NOLS (National Outdoor Leadership School). She holds a bachelor's degree in recreation and social work from George Williams College, where she recently received the Distinguished Alumnae Award. She is a poet and shares her writing and Wild Dares through her newsletter, Wild Thoughts.
